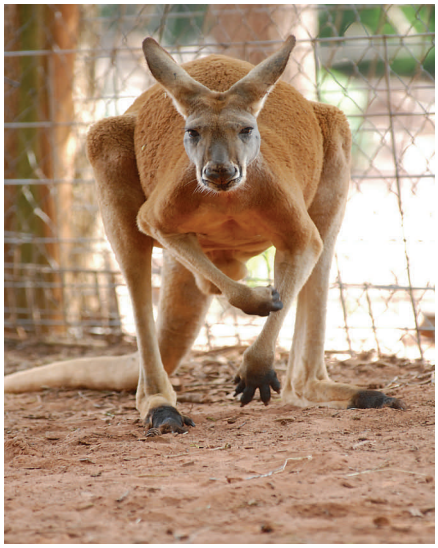
Lean and Green



Join Us for the 19th Annual Oklahoma Clean Lakes and Watersheds Association Conference

April 08, 2010
Oklahoma City Zoo
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

The 19th annual OCLWA Symposium will be on April 8, 2010 from 8am-5pm. As a treat for our membership, we have reserved conference facilities at the Oklahoma City Zoo and Botanical Gardens. The OKC Zoo is world-renowned and will provide a beautiful backdrop to our symposium. Early bird registration is only $50, covering not only your annual dues but both breakfast and lunch.

Appropriately, our conference theme is "Lean and Green"! As you may have already noticed, this year's conference is a bit different than past years, a bit more "lean". Why the change? First, we want to meet the needs of our membership. Understanding that this is a rough financial time for many government agencies and universities, the shortened conference will require no travel or per diem expenditures, and meals are covered in your registration fee, which has been reduced by nearly 40%! Second, as you may be aware, the OCLWA is hosting the 2010 NALMS International Symposium. Planning a one-day state conference has freed up more time to plan and properly showcase our state and organization! What about the "green"? Our Board has put together a list of speakers that will cover topics varying from municipal stormwater and non-point/point source implementation projects to programs estimating the condition of our state's waters to green projects funded by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. And, as a keynote talk, we hope to have a discussion of Oklahoma City's green projects!

Please, come join us for a wonderful day at the Zoo! Looking forward to seeing you!
